Monthly Commentary

South Africa: The SARB unexpectedly left its benchmark repo rate steady at 6.75% in November. The South African economy expanded an annualized 2.0% on quarter in the three months to September. South Africa's unemployment rate came in at 27.7 percent in the third quarter of 2017, the same as in the previous two quarters and remaining the highest rate in 13 years. Consumer prices in South Africa increased 4.6 percent in November of 2017, easing from a 4.8 percent rise in the previous month. The ALSI had a negative month, decreasing by 0.3% with Gold shares falling 10.2% and Industrials falling 4.1% mainly due to the collapse in Steinhoff. Financials had a strong month, gaining 8.4%, as the market reacted positively to the result of the ANC elective conference. The rand also strengthened following the conference, up 9.6% against the dollar.

International: The Federal Reserve raised the target range for the federal funds rate by a quarter point to 1.25-1.5 percent during its December 2017 meeting. The US economy expanded an annualized 3.2% on quarter in the third quarter of 2017. The Dow Jones had another strong month, gaining 1.9%, while the S&P and the Nasdaq were both up over 0.5% in the month. The ECB held its benchmark refinancing rate at 0 percent in December. The Eurozone economy advanced 0.6 percent on quarter in the three months to September of 2017. European markets were negative in November with the Dax down 0.8% and the Cac 40 down 0.9%. The Bank of England voted unanimously to keep the Bank Rate at 0.5 percent in December, following a 25bps hike in the previous meeting. The British economy advanced 0.4 percent on quarter in the three months to September 2017. The FTSE had a very strong month, up 5.0%.

Our Position: We are maintaining our maximum exposure in international equities according to the fund's risk/return profile, with zero in offshore bonds. Locally we see no reason to invest in local companies that have 'challenging' conditions. We have retained our exposure to SA equities with an emphasis on 'international companies listed on the JSE'. We have an overweight position in property stocks, well diversified between local and foreign exposure. Local property continues to offer good potential real returns, foreign property in developed markets is continuing to benefit from relatively low interest rates and improving growth dynamics and provides additional protection from currency depreciation. We have an overweight position in local bonds which is comprised of managers who, in combination, take advantage of high yielding corporate opportunities and low duration instruments which has benefited our investors in the current environment.
