Monthly Commentary

South Africa: The JSE All Share recorded its best month thus far in 2019, gaining 3.7% to 54 417 index points. Economic data points released during the month did not support this performance. The seasonally adjusted Absa PMI fell further in March to 45.0, from 46.2 in February and a recent high of 50.7 in December. The intensification of load-shedding and weakening of economic conditions weighed down on sentiment and consumer confidence. The 0.76c increase in the petrol price during March as well as the R1.34 jump announced in April had a negative effect on inflation numbers, which picked up from 4.1% in February to 4.5% in March and now sits in the middle of the SARB target range. Mining output dropped by 7.5% during the month, its biggest decline since 2016. The IMF and the World Bank downgraded its growth forecast for S.A's GDP, specifically citing the effects of load-shedding. The currency did get some breathing space after Moody's decided to delay its review of South Africa's sovereign debt rating, the rating remains at Baa 3 with a stable outlook.

Financials outperformed during the month, adding 4.6% while the Property Index added 1.4%, following two consecutive months of losses. The Resource index moved lower for the first time this year, losing 2.3% and the Industrial index continues to move higher (+6.5%), driven by a good performance in Naspers (9.7%). The Rand initially appreciated following the delay in Moody's rating decision but did lose some steam as the month progressed. It did eventually gain against the US Dollar (+0.6%), British Pound (+0.5%) and the Euro (+0.8%) during the month.

International: The global equity market rally which began just before Christmas, continued throughout the month of April with the S&P 500 (+3.9%) and tech-heavy Nasdaq (+4.7%) reaching new all-time highs. This upward move in the market materialised as a result of better-than-expected first quarter corporate earnings, a continued dovish stance from central banks, a recovery in growth numbers in China, strong economic data out from the U.S and renewed optimism around trade talks between the U.S and China.

European markets continued to move higher, making it four consecutive months of positive returns, as the Euro Stoxx 50 (+4.9%), German Dax (+7.1%), France's CAC (+4.4%), FTSE Italy (+2.8%) and FTSE 100 (+1.9%) all performed well. For those still following Brexit, after six hours of tense talks, the decision was made to delay Brexit until the 31st October.
